Democrats' Band Plays "Tammany" and "Maryland" Under Astor Windows.

Up to midnight Charles E. Hughes refused to concede the reelection of President Wilson or to claim anything for himself. He simply sat back in his apartment in the Hotel Astor and scanned the reports that dribbled in from the far West. He visited national headquarters in the afternoon and in the evening received the national chairman, William R. Willcox, at the Astor, but had no comment to make.

At midnight 'fr. Hughes, tired out by the day's activities, cont out word by his secretary, Lawrence Green, that he was going to bed. He would make no state-
